Dear Parents

It's been another lovely week at Rosebank. I feel so at home already. A special thank you to parents who came along to our P&C meeting on Tuesday. A lot is planned for the remaining weeks of the term. Stay tuned!

On Sunday, most of our Year 4/5/6 class are heading off to Canberra. Parents of students attending have received an information package including consent forms. Please be sure to return forms to school by tomorrow (Friday). The tour itinerary is posted on our website under Curriculum and Activities and we'll continue to post updates onto that section of the site throughout the week. Our website is under renovation, with lots of new galleries added this week by Helen, our lovely Administration Officer. Check it out...and put your hand up if you'd like to help work on the look of our site or newsletter.

Individual educational programs have been planned for students who are not going on the Canberra trip. We'll look forward to seeing them at school as usual, where they will be supported to work through their program by other class teachers. I will return to school on Friday to work with those students who weren't able to go along.

Great news: Aimee, Lana and Felicity have been selected to participate in the Small Schools Choir that will try out for the Opera House Choir. Congratulations girls and a special acknowledgement to those who tried out but were not selected – you have shown great character by being happy for those chosen.

From our student leaders:

As Peer Support Leader, it's my job to help all the children in the school if they have problems. I do my best to try and sort their problems out. We've been learning about resilience. That's when you focus on the big picture and don't worry about the little things. Like, if you get something wrong, you should focus on what you have learned and not worry about making a mistake. If you are resilient, you won't have as much stress. I've noticed that our little children are becoming more and more resilient all the time.

Freya Cotterill: Peer Support Leader
